Planning a Catholic Funeral

Notes for bereaved families

We offer our sincere sympathy to you, your family and friends in your bereavement.

The Catholic community joins you in grieving for your loved one and offers you a range of ways to give thanks to God for their life, to ask for the forgiveness of their sins and to affirm our hope in the resurrection. Just as there are stages in the process of grieving, the Church encourages us to say farewell to our loved ones in three main stages:

- The Prayer Vigil, usually the evening before the funeral;
- The Funeral, which may be a Mass or a Funeral Service;
- The Committal at the cemetery or crematorium.

However all these rites are not appropriate in every situation and the parish looking after the funeral will be happy to help you decide on what is best for you and to choose appropriate readings, prayers and music.

The Prayer Vigil

The Vigil may be held in the home of the deceased person, in a funeral home or in the church. The mood of the Vigil is one of quiet support, with readings from scripture and prayers. It may include the Rosary and appropriate poems and songs.

The Funeral

This is the community's main celebration and prayer for the deceased person. This could be a Funeral Mass, but if the majority of the mourners would not be able to participate fully in a Mass, it may be a Funeral Service. The family and friends of the deceased can be involved, if they feel able, in a variety of ways:

- Placing on the coffin symbols of Christian faith, such as the pall (a large white cloth which reminds us of Baptism), a crucifix and an open bible.
- Placing other symbols of the person's life on a table near the coffin.
- Reading the scripture passages or the intercessions.
- Speaking briefly in memory of the deceased person.
- Bringing up the gifts of bread and wine (if it is a Mass).

The Funeral usually takes place in the parish church but, if it is not a Mass, it may sometimes be appropriate to hold it in the chapel of the cemetery or crematorium immediately before the Committal.

The Committal

The final act of saying farewell is a brief service at the graveside or at the crematorium. When a body is cremated there may be a further brief service for the burial of the ashes some time later.

Music

The use of music in the various stages of the funeral is important, and carefully selected hymns and music will enhance the service, bring back memories of a loved one and provide consolation for the bereaved. It should be borne in mind that the Catholic Church has a vast library of music to suit all needs. Some music (or words) which would not be appropriate for use in church may be better suited to the crematorium or the cemetery. Your local parish will be pleased to give advice and guidance.

Please contact the parish looking after the funeral before finalising any arrangements with the Funeral Director.
